THE STORY

(IN A RUSH TO GET STARTED? SKIP TO NEXT PAGE!)

After another particularly shitty year on Earth we, a fellowship of disheartened Swedes, decided it was time to abandon ship. We headed to the Caribbean with a one-way ticket away from fake news and into the sunset. While licking our wounds on the beaches of Rincón, enjoying more than a healthy dosage of the excellent local rum (Ron del Barrilito), a shred of hope returned with every sip. Soon, a lively discussion on ways to fix the world ensued. With our Swedish heritage of structure and consensus the most natural thing to do was to list ways to turn the ship around.

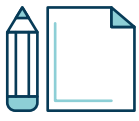

So it happened that the creative cocktail of rum, our Scandinavian urge to compromise and the Caribbean laid-back attitude led to the only logical answer on how to save the world: Leave ideology, borders, nukes and taxes for later and let's agree on the everyday questions first. We call this a Caribbish mindset!

With a new purpose in mind, we created Listit - the card game that's 95% awesomely fun and 5% world-saving. After all, if we can learn to understand how other people envision the world, perhaps we can finally solve the eternal question of "Why can't everyone just get along?". One list at the time.

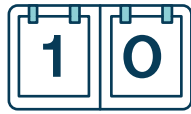

P.S. If it fails we can all resort to our secret rum stash.
Skål! (It means cheers - now go play!)

SETUP

Give each player a pen and paper.

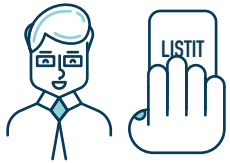

Decide final score or number of rounds. Assign a scorekeeper.

The player least likely to get into an argument starts. Turn order then proceeds clockwise.

ROUND STRUCTURE

The player whose turn it is chooses a category, picks a card and reads the corresponding question aloud.

You can put a star next to one answer to earn bonus points.

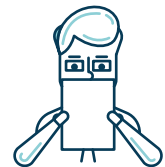

All players list 5 answers each.

The round ends when the second-to-last player puts down their pen. Stop writing!

The first player to put the pen down reads their answers aloud, followed in clockwise order.

Note the scores and start a new round! When a player reaches the final score or when the rounds are up, the game ends.

SCOREKEEPING

Each answer that is also present on any other player's list is awarded with one point.

①

Unless it is starred, then it's awarded with three points.

☆
3

But! A starred answer not on any other player's list renders minus three points!

☆
-3

In each round, you can get a maximum of seven points (all answers in common with other players, one starred) and a minimum of minus three points (no answers in common, one starred).

EXAMPLE OF ROUND

I'll go with 'At the therapist'

Crap! I only managed four...

The topic is 'Weird stuff people are scared of'

I'm done!

Me too! Stop writing Anna!

I put my pen down first. Did anyone write 'clowns'? It's my star...

Haha, no but that's true though!

I did!

Yes! 3 point for me! 1 for Anna and none for you John. My next is 'insects'. Anyone?

HOW TO MAKE LISTIT

Download the PDF and send it to a print shop (or print it yourself!).

Print the game on heavy, white card stock. Use a color printer for the best result.

Cut the cards up by using a paper slicer. Or just use your scissorhands if your name is Edward. Attention to detail is key here, you don't want to make a mess.

Find a nice box to keep the cards safe. Metal, plastic, cardboard... be creative! We've found nice rectangular boxes that can fit two decks of cards side by side, but you can surely find even better ways to safekeep your deck! If you find something particularly creative, we'd love to see it! Just snap a picture and tag #listitgame.

While you're waiting for the printer, here's a mojito that goes along perfectly with the game!

That's it, you're all set!
